Promocja twórczości Olgi Tokarczuk

The book cover for 'Flights' by Olga Tokarczuk features a yellow background with a central illustration of a person in a blue and white striped shirt. The title 'FLIGHTS' is written in large, bold, white letters, and the author's name 'OLGA TOKARCZUK' is below it. There are also some smaller logos and text at the top of the cover.

This reflects the existential preoccupations of Flights, whose central recurring tropes are physical movement, the mortal body and the meaning of home. It is a novel of intuitions as much as ideas, a cacophony of voices and stories seemingly unconnected across time and space, which meander between the profound and the facetious, the mysterious and the ordinary, and whose true register remains one of glorious ambiguity. Olga Tokarczuk is a household name in Poland and one of Europe's major humanist writers, working here in the continental tradition of the "thinking" or essayistic novel.

Geralt the Witcher—revered and hated—is a man whose magic powers, enhanced by long training and a mysterious elixir, have made him a brilliant fighter and a merciless assassin. Yet he is no ordinary murderer: his targets are the multifarious monsters and vile fiends that ravage the land and attack the innocent.

But not everything monstrous-looking is evil and not everything fair is good... and in every fairy tale there is a grain of truth.
